New York Presbyterian Program Director Message

Dear New York Presbyterian Emergency Medicine Residents,

It is an honor and blessing to have you join our residency family. I believe a culture that embraces a family environment where I can help you grow personally and professionally is the key to your future success as an emergency medicine physician. Your patient care and learning are my biggest priorities. Over these next few years, I hope to give you the medical knowledge, technical skill, and understanding of the art of emergency medicine to provide you the ability to manage any patient, at any place, at any time. Your education is a commitment that I approach with great care and reverence. Expect me to be available and patient with time; honest with the trust you and your loved ones have placed in me; and transparent with our shared program. I strive to create a supportive environment that is centered around our collective wellness, diversity and inclusion. Did I forget to mention that we are going to have a ton of fun?

I expect residents to bring positive energy, a great work ethic, and the ability to be open to improvement. In turn, I aspire to make you the consummate professional--clinical superstar; thoughtful contributor to the scientific community; respected teacher; responsible citizen; and engaged community contributor. For me, the goal isn't to make you solely a great resident physician. I strive to develop leadership, character, and integrity so that you can be a superlative clinician, respected leader, and better family member to those you love.

I am excited for your future in emergency medicine and am thrilled that I will have an opportunity to play a role in your maturation. I truly care about who you are, and I value your time, enthusiasm, and service. I consider myself very fortunate to teach, coach and mentor the next outstanding generation of emergency medicine physicians!

Sincerely and respectfully,

Manish Garg, MD
